

Because we walk with you

There must be no God and no reason. There must be no compassion or respect for life.

There must be neither order nor organization.

Only the hoax is sovereign, only the lie has been able to achieve a certain reality.

So we assume existence for you.

Yesterday and tomorrow don't exist, so existence is frozen in a perpetual present.

You know this because we know it and we are you.

You're imprisoned with us until death do us part, after which we'll be no more.

In the meantime, you can count on our benevolence, and above all, never panic: everything is under control, and you yourself are under guard.
